YELLOW WEEK

Basant Panchami Festival brings the light of wisdom and positivity to our lives. This festival is all about celebrating and learning about nature, with yellow being the colour of auspiciousness. It is important to opt for a bright yellow garment to attract luck and positivity. Yellow is also associated with Goddess Saraswati and symbolises knowledge and denotes the mustard fields that tell all about the arrival of the spring season. The Basant Panchami puja rituals also include yellow flowers, yellow sweets, and yellow outfits making it an important symbol. Thus to welcome the lovely Spring season & Basant Panchami the tiny tots of Little Scholars OBSERVED THE BASANT PANCHAMI WEEK AS THE YELLOW WEEK

"Threads of Compassion"

Compassion blooms where hearts align,
A thread that weaves through humankind.
A gentle touch, a word sincere,
A balm to soothe each hidden tear.

It walks beside the weary soul,
And lifts them up to make them whole.
It whispers hope in darkest days,
And lights the path with tender rays.

No borders bind its boundless reach,
No creed or code its truth impeach.
It finds its home in every face,
A bond that time cannot erase.

So let compassion guide your way,
Its gentle tide will never sway.
A force that heals, a love profound,
In every heart it can be found

"The Light of Mercy"

Mercy, the echo of a gentle call,
A gift that fall.
It softens edges sharp and cold,
A grace that cannot be bought or sold.

It bends but never breaks in stride,
A beacon glowing deep inside.
In mercy's arms, the lost are found,
Its quiet whispers heal the wound.

No harsh decree, no judgment stern,
For mercy knows, we all must learn.
It reaches out with open hand,
A bridge where hearts can understand.

So let mercy's light within you stay,
And guide your steps along the way.
A virtue pure, a bond divine,
Forever yours, forever mine.

"The Mighty Pen"

A simple tool, so light to hold,
Yet within, it hides a power bold.
A whisper soft, or thunder's roar,
The pen unlocks an endless door.

It crafts the worlds where dreams can soar,
And captures truths none could ignore.
It signs the peace, it stirs the strife,
It births new hope, it alters life.

With ink, it charts the paths of kings,
And gives the voiceless songs to sing.
It weaves the tales that time defends,
A loyal guide, a steadfast friend.

So wield it well, this noble art,
For it speaks the soul and moves the heart.
The pen, though small, will always reign,
Its might eternal, its mark unchained.
